Subject: Nashville Presidents Reports for Fall Conference Due by Sept. 10, 2021*

NAWIC Nashville has a great year planned for 21-22. Our theme for the year is Educating and Building You. The goal for this year is to have everyone learn something, professionally or personally. We have a great plan for the year that talks about safety, business etiquette, making a vision a reality, learning about cyber security, and how to market yourself. Those are just the membership meetings! We also have an array of social events planned as well such as marketing, galentines, self-defense, and golf. Our big goal for the year is to connect and bring in a group of girl scouts and teach them about construction. We want these girls to see there are women who are succeeding in male populated industries. There is funding available for school, on the job training, and you can have an amazing career in construction. We hope that building a bridge to show girls in high school that construction is an excellent option for them.

The incoming board got together in August and performed a swot of previous activities and how we want to proceed this year. The goals are to 1- improve communication specifically about the benefits of membership and social media content. 2- Committee engagement- to increase committee engagement with each other and with membership. 3- Keep the flexible meeting options with a consistent location. Many of our committees only have a couple people on them and we want to bring awareness of what these committees can do and the benefit they bring to the membership.

Tiffany and I are looking forward to a great year with a great group of incoming board members and a committed membership. We hope to bring more awareness to the opportunities available to women entering and currently in construction by educating and building them up.

Thank you,

Ashley Spence
